

OpenText Keyfile Document Management Software

Overview

Keyfile document management software has always offered the ultimate in document tracking, content management, version control, and more.

Our Keyfile product lets you handle many different forms of information: paper, fax, e-mail, word processor files, scanned photographs - even voice and video - all within the same document. Furthermore, Keyfile Workspace, integrated with Tower Software's TRIM Captura product, has been certified by the Joint Interoperability Test Command (JITC) to meet the U.S. Department of Defence Standard 5015.2!

Keyfile Workspace

The Keyfile Workspace client allows users access to and sharing of their Keyfile objects.

They can still work in a manner similar to the "Classic" Keyfile Desktop in that they have a clearly defined document management work area, organised and maintained separately from the rest of their Windows Desktop.

Keyfile's Extranet Service enables secure document publishing to business partners across the Internet.

Document Management - The Future

Choosing a document management system that best fits your organisation is extremely complex in today's ever-changing business environment, there are new technologies emerging all the time. If you are an existing Keyfile customer knowing what to do with the Keyfile proprietary database can be a challenge: Maintaining it as a legacy system can be expensive. Migrating to a new system can be both time consuming and expensive. At Mission Critical we can offer a solution. File360 is a merger of existing and robust technologies; OpenText File360 and OpenText Keyfile. Combining these technologies provides a powerful, intuitive, and scalable document management system that enables your organisation to rapidly capture, index, store, share, and protect your critical business documents, regardless of the application used to create them and without the need to migrate from the existing Keyfile database.
